An Example Article*

Frederick Solt University of Iowa

Here's where you write 100 to 250 words, depending on the journal, that describe your objective, methods, results, and conclusion.

Keywords: these, always seem silly, to me, given google, but regardless

Introduction to RMarkdown

This is an R Markdown document. Markdown is a simple formatting syntax for authoring HTML, PDF, and MS Word documents. For more details on using R Markdown see http://rmarkdown.rstudio.com.

When you click the Knit button a document will be generated that includes both content as well as the output of any embedded R code chunks within the document. You can embed an R code chunk like this:

summary(mtcars)

Including Plots

You can also embed plots, for example:

Figure 1 is a plot made in the `dotwhisker` package (Solt and Hu 2015). Note that the `echo = FALSE` parameter was added to the code chunk to prevent printing of the R code that generated the plot.

Citations

Want to cite something?

1. Find your cite key in your bib file.
2. Put an @ before it, like Solt et al. (2017), or whatever it is
3. Solt et al. (2017) creates an in-text citation
4. (Herndon, Ash and Pollin 2014) creates a parenthetical citation

As Gelman and Loken (2014) note, the garden of forking paths can pose problems for researchers even when they are acting in good faith.

Other Common Things

> This will create a block quote, if you want one.

Dropping a footnote is easy.[1]
